What is Sustainable Shopping?

To be a Sustainable shopper, we need to recognize that everything we buy has health, environmental and social impact. Sustainable shopping is your chance to support with your wallet what is important to you and avoid products and services that do not align with your beliefs.

Buy Less, Buy Better, Buy Local.

A recent study estimated that every year 100 million tonnes of new textiles come onto the market globally and with only a tiny percentage of clothing that is worn 100 to 200 times. We are buying more and throwing away more too. Not only is this bad news for the environment, but it also means that in a bid to create cheaper clothes to meet our desire for newness, companies look to locate factories in places where they operate more cheaply at factory level (Carvell, 2018).

How you can be a Sustainable Shopper?

Choose Reusable Gift Wrapping Paper

Did you know the normal gift wrapping paper is not recyclable? Choose to wrap with reusable paper, cloth or reusable bags to create a happier more sustainable gift that can then be used for future gifts!

BYOB-Bring Your Own Bag!

Choose to eliminate plastic bags from your shopping trip by bringing your own reusable bags which will make the planet a cleaner and happier place for the holidays!

Buy Nothing- Make Something!

You can choose to save money while making something for your loved ones! Follow this link to get easy-to-make recipes for holiday gifts! <http://www.makesomething.ca/>

#DonatenotLandfill

A staggering 85% of our collective apparel ends up in landfills...that's over 10.5 million tons of clothing according to second-hand store Value Village. Most of this waste is not recovered for recycling like other waste. It's among the lowest on the recycling rung right near food waste and wood!

You can choose to eliminate this waste by voting with your wallet and buying from ethical fashion brands or thrift shopping! Donating your clothes to thrift stores or shelters offers a convenient and sustainable alternative to ensure you are helping the planet!

Ethical Fashion

The majority of trends and styles from the big name designers on the runway, are often utilized by fashion conscious individuals at a low price. Although this enables one to access fashion cheaply, it has a negative effect on the environment and for those creating the garments. These effects include contaminating lakes and rivers surrounding factories in other countries.

Ethical Fashion considers the materials used, how the garment is made and who is making it, in order to be ethical without compromising on quality. Ethical fashion or slow fashion aims to decrease the speed of production, consumption and disposing of by placing greater appreciation on one's purchase. Carefully considering an acquisition, connecting with clothes instead of having another addition to the wardrobe which may be only worn for one occasion
